PERSONNEL DECISIONS INTERNATIONAL HIRES MITCHELL NASH AS GENERAL MANAGER FOR SAN FRANCISCO

MINNEAPOLIS (Feb. 5, 2008) – Personnel Decisions International (PDI), a global consulting firm specializing in talent management and leadership development, named Mitchell Nash as general manager for San Francisco.

“We are very excited to welcome Mitchell to PDI,” said Tommy Daniel, Ph.D., senior vice president of PDI. “His professional experience and expertise will continue to position PDI as a global leadership consulting firm.”

Nash joins PDI with more than 20 years of experience in the industry and in the Bay Area. Most recently, he has been the regional vice president for Linkage where he managed sales, marketing and the delivery of services for their western region, as well as selling and delivering client work. Prior to Linkage, Nash led sales and business development for two technology start-ups focused on learning and development and web-based collaboration software. Nash also spent 10 years with Interaction Associates, a management consulting and training company in San Francisco, where he was a partner and head of sales. He has also delivered key-note speeches for clients and at professional associations on numerous leadership and change management topics. On joining PDI, Nash says “I am excited to be joining the San Francisco office at a time where it is experiencing significant growth. The Bay Area is such a dynamic market and I am looking forward to contributing to the outstanding work we are doing for our clients.”

Nash graduated with a B.A. in psychology from Queen’s College and has an M.A. in counseling psychology as well as additional graduate training in organizational development from New York University.
